

Girl Scouts get first-hand look at STEM careers at Macomb CC

Don Gardner

About 90 Girl Scouts in grades 4-12 from Macomb, Wayne, Oakland and Genesee counties took part in Girl Scout Engineering Day on Saturday, Feb. 22 at the Macomb Community College South Campus in Warren.

The event celebrates National Engineers Week, and Girl Scout Engineering Day is designed to help remove perceived gender barriers in engineering.

Lab Technician Richard Rymski demonstrates advanced robotics

Oakland University student Arianna Mills, right, gives Ellie Leaf of Girl Scout Troop 76234 a hand solving a problem

Shaelyn Simms and Sydney Ferrence build their robot

photos by David Angell -- for The Macomb Daily